

IRISH MEDICAL ORGANISATION
Ceardchumann Dochtúirí na hÉireann

2019 Student Essay Competition

“How can a doctor best improve a patient’s life expectancy?”

Closing date: Friday, 29th March 2019

Medical students studying in Ireland are invited to submit an essay addressing this topic.

Category 1. (Clinical-Year Students): A research piece reporting on developments in clinical medicine or general practice on the topic.

Maximum:

- 2,000 Words
- 20 References
- 4 Illustrations

Category 2. (Pre-Clinical Year Students): An opinion piece discussing your personal views on this topic; may include reviews of controversial or unusual aspects of medicine.

Maximum:

- 1,500 Words
- 10 References
- 2 Illustrations

The winning submissions (1 for each category), selected by IMJ Editor Dr. John FA Murphy, will be published in a future edition of the Irish Medical Journal.

To submit your entry, or to request further information, email Ms. Jennifer Warren in the IMJ Editorial Office at jwarren@imo.ie.

NOTICE

All content material of advertisements shall be subject to the approval of the Irish Medical Journal. The Irish Medical Journal reserves the right at any time to decline, omit, suspend, discontinue or alter any advertisement without providing any reason for doing so. Acceptance of advertising does not imply endorsement.