

The Convention Centre Dublin (The CCD): Helping you bring your international conference home to Dublin

Becoming a Conference Ambassador and hosting an international conference in Dublin can help raise Ireland's profile in your field or industry, generate revenue to fund future research, and help further develop your organisation.

Did you know that various government incentives including the introduction of a Conference Ambassador Programme, are available to help you bring an international event to Dublin?

Our specialist Account Managers have expert knowledge of the association market and are well-acquainted with the competitive bidding process that can be required to attract prestigious events to the city. Working on your behalf, we offer the following complimentary services.

- A personalised bid document for you to present to your International Committee
- A professional audio/video presentation
- Help with promoting your bid at your association's next International conference
- Assistance with the selection of a Professional Conference Organiser (PCO)
- Professional advice and support every step of the way
